Who we are:

A group of writers at various places in their writing development, from novice to full-time professional.

What we do:

Monthly Meetings with Distinguished Speakers and Open Readings

Sierra Writers holds 9 general meetings each year. These meetings are free and open to the public. Authors and literary professionals present on a variety of topics. Twice yearly, general meetings are open readings, giving writers the opportunity to have works read and critiqued anonymously.

Meetings are at 6:30pm the second Wednesday of the month in September through June, (December excepted). Meetings are held at the Madelyn Helling Library Community Room in Nevada City.

Critique Groups for Perfecting Your Craft

Share with other writers and develop your talents. For members only, writing critique groups give writers the opportunity to work with other writers in their specific discipline. There are fiction and non-fiction critique groups currently underway. Critique groups meet monthly or bi-monthly. Contact group leader for details and meeting locations. Note: Critique groups for poetry and children's writing are being explored.

Annual Contest for Young Writers

An annual young adult writer's contest showcases new talent and encourages youth in their writing endeavors.
